Decorating Tips

with Cindy Poire

Use the things that you love to collect together to create a fun, fresh look for your home!

The chickens are soup tureens and from the 20's to the 70's. They are elevated at different heights and grounded with platters.

Take small spaces to create a fascinating vignette. Wooden serving pieces from the 50's don't have to stay in the kitchen or pantry, use the things you love through your whole house and layer, making sure you create different heights.

Maple furniture from the 30's to the 60's is always timeless and classic.

Fireplaces can take on a look of their own and don't have to be seasonal or boring. Use pieces in multiples and varying heights. Just because it's not the fad doesn't make it not classic and beautiful.

Collecting small pieces of different eras can be beautiful too! Always have interesting backgrounds such as mirrors or platters standing upright for depth and arrange pieces according to height.

The mirrors are from the 20's and the brass candlesticks are Edwardian to the 60's.

Silhouettes have always been popular, from Victorian and Georgian period through the 50's. Group them together with other art and use in small spaces to make them their own. Trays can be hung along with your art too. They are works of art in of themselves!

Monotone vintage pieces in the same shades of color work wonderfully together when grouped and hung. Use pieces of furniture for other than dictated. This high bureau stores vintage linens.

Stairwells don't have to be plain or boring, mix the art you love together as a gallery.

Tip, be sure to use the correct hangers to hang and display!

Thank you Cindy Poire for your decorating tips!

If you would like to see more of Cindy's beautiful style be sure to visit her two stores.

SPRING CLEANING

In these trying times, its a perfect time to get your house in order. Think of it as, spring cleaning! It's good for the heart and soul, as well as clearing, cleaning and arrangement. Purging is extremely therapeutic. Start with one room- closets, shelves, cabinets. Place items in piles in boxes or trash bags labeled- keep, maybe, donate and trash. Furniture obviously, set aside.

TRASH: Best advise, go with your first instinct. Do not rethink or retrieve the item(s) from the pile. Just do it. Believe me, you will never miss it! Typically things you haven't used or looked at in a million years, your children don't want are dated or obsolete.

DONATE/ PASS IT ON: "Now take the plunge and give away...to those who will bless your generosity". (SIMPLE ABUNDANCE by Sarah Ban Breathnach)

Never used gifts; kitchenware; clothes; toys; books; baby items, etc. Electronics are the hot items. Keep in mind that your donations should be relatively current and in- style.

Used items are fine, if they are in good condition, genteelly worn and not damaged.

KEEP: "Keep" is easy. It makes you smile and you love it; it's an heirloom; memento; a photograph or collectible, etc. Store it, organize or display the items.

MAYBE: Do this section last. You can readdress once you have trashed and donated.

Have fun and keep a positive attitude!
I know you will feel better.

MARX BATTERY OPERATED TRESTLE TRAIN SET

©2020 FiveKatzAntiques

By Ed Kindle, Five Katz Antiques

As a youngster I was always active, as was any kid back in the day. We had great imaginations and never lacked for something to do. I grew up inheriting many great toys from my father and my uncle. One of the reasons for this is my grandmother had once worked for Marx Toys.

Marx Toys was an American toy manufacturer that created great, durable toys that lasted for a long time. The company was founded by Louis Marx & his brother David and it operated for 61 years, from 1919 up until 1980. They were the most well-known toy company through most of the 20th century.

Marx Toys made it all: tin plate toys, which included buildings and soldiers, Playsets, dinosaurs, dolls & dollhouses, cars, trucks, construction toys, trains in HO & O scale, toy guns, action figures and more! Some of the more recognizable Marx toys were the Big Wheel and Rock 'Em Sock 'Em Robots, which still bring a premium price for original 1960's versions.

Playsets were all inclusive toys self-contained in suitcase like travel boxes that could be set up anywhere. These included crossovers from TV such as Davy Crocket, Gunsmoke, Wagon Train, Battle of the Blue & the Grey, Robin Hood, Tom Corbett Fort Apache, Ben Hur and more. A bit of imagination and you had hours of entertainment. Living on the Space Coast, I made sure to find the NASA Cape Canaveral Playset. These playsets were very popular and still are today. There are many reproductions still available for sale without the high prices of an original.

The toy you see here is the Marx Battery Operated Trestle Train Set. The box features their slogan "One of the many Marx Toys, do you have all of them?" The set consists of one locomotive with light, one tender, one caboose, one open car, ten trestles, six curved track sections, and six straight track sections.

The locomotive and train cars are a mix of plastic and tin with lithograph printing. The track is plastic as are the trestles. Marx was a very early adopter of plastic for making toys. Today factory errors and mis-formed plastic toys are ground back up into raw material and recycled at the factory. I can remember my father and uncle telling me Marx used to just toss these rejects in the dumpster and haul them off to the dump and they would go and dig up these factory second toys to play with even though Marx Toys were some of the most affordable toys available.

The train set is mint in the box and has probably never been played with. Marx Toys featured some of the best box and cover art around and this set is no exception. Marx employed many great artists over the years and vintage original box art proof sheets are amazing to see.

Even though this carries the Marx logo, this set was actually made in Japan. Marx produced a line of toys made in Japan called Linemar Toys. This was a strategy used to keep costs down. The toys were made in Japan and sold in the US and around the world. Labor costs were usually the reason for this business practice.

There have been a few Marx Toys Museums, over the years, but due to economic reasons of not being able to produce enough revenue, they have all closed down. This is interesting as there are still Marx toys being produced today, albeit under different owners and names. New versions of Big Wheels and Rock 'Em Sock 'Em Robots are still found on the shelves of toys stores and many Marx train car molds are still being used to produce rolling stock.

Having grown up with many Marx Toys, I have a soft spot for them and if you look them up on sites like eBay, you will see many other collectors do too! With so many different types of toys, Marx Toys make a great collecting hobby.

Hello Friends,

I am wishing you all health and safety during this trying time. I know it is difficult and requires patience. All events and retreats at The Cozy Castle have been postponed, and during this time I am focusing on trying to make lemonade with the lemons. I am keeping my spirits lifted by cooking, organizing and creating.

I am doing things such as looking at the bounty of pantry and freezer goods I have and using all of these things first instead of rushing out and adding to the chaos at the store. I am spending time in the garden and using fresh herbs in my dishes. I have opened my baking cabinet and made a gathering of things I have had for a while and am using them to make sweet treats that fill the house with beautiful aromas. I alternate the cooking days with time at my art table, long walks, bike rides, and quiet reading time.

I was speaking to my neighbor this morning on my walk who is working from home and she mentioned this to me, and it hit home. In our businesses and organizations etc., we need to talk about and focus on the future. This is just a pause, so be strong and try to seek the positive in any way you can. There is always somewhere to find your own "happy" each day.

In focusing on my future, it is time I officially share my happy news with you all! After 31 years in Florida, my roots have called me home to Maryland. I have thought about this for a long time, and when I put my sights on Maryland, everything fell into place.

I have purchased another "Cozy Castle" in a wonderful, historic and art-filled town called Frederick. It is a graciously renovated 1920's home and offers everything I could dream of, and more for my life and Cozy Castle Events. It is here also that I will be working hard on my lifestyle book, "My Cozy Castle Life."

I have made incredible memories in the sunshine state and my hope is to purchase a small place here in central Florida as my second home. This means I will be around often! I also have plans of doing "pop-up" events in Florida, including a beautiful Christmas retreat weekend.

I will be taking a little break from my newsletter so I can concentrate on the move, but I will be back soon to share all that will be happening at the new Cozy Castle. I am sharing some photos here so you can take a peek at what awaits me!

I want to thank every person who has attended my events, retreats and supported my art here in Florida. Thank you for being a part of what I created. I hope you will follow me into this new adventure and allow me to share the joy with you!

xo, Karen, of The Cozy Castle

Simple food is the best food!

By Karen Paige Hillman

I am sharing a few recipes with you that are easy and delicious!

The grocery store, I know, has not been a favorite place to be these last few weeks. While trying to grab a few items one day, there was no lettuce or even bagged salads to be found! However, there were large heads of cauliflower and containers of pre-chopped, colorful butternut squash. In my cart they went, as I knew I could figure out something tasty to do with them. What I didn't realize at the time is that I would actually serve them together! This is an easy and lovely finished presentation.

The Ravioli with Brown Butter Sauce is a wonderful dinner dish, and chances are you might just have the 4 ingredients needed on hand. Many are intimidated by making brown butter but there is no need to be! It just takes a bit of patience. It changes the taste of pasta completely, making it taste light, nutty and delicious.

Ravioli with Brown Butter Sauce

INGREDIENTS

- 1 stick of butter
- 10 ounce package of refrigerated ravioli
- Grated parmesan cheese
- Chopped fresh sage, optional

In a pot of salted water, cook ravioli according to package instructions. (you may use any other pasta you might have on hand as well.)

DIRECTIONS

In a large stainless steel skillet over medium heat, melt butter. Stay nearby and swirl the pan every now and then. The butter will turn from a lemon yellow color, to a golden tan, to a deep brown. Once you see the foam subsiding and that the milk fats are very brown and in the bottom of the pan, you have burnt butter! Drain your pasta and top with burnt butter sauce. Top with grated parmesan cheese and garnish with a bit of fresh chopped sage if you wish. Serves 3-4.

Whole Roasted Cauliflower and Butternut Squash

INGREDIENTS

- 1 whole head of Cauliflower
  - 12 ounce container of pre-chopped butternut squash, found in produce section
  - 1/3 cup of olive oil
  - 4 garlic cloves minced
  - handful of grated parmesan ( and a little extra to top cauliflower before broiling)
  - 1 tsp dry parsley
  - 1 tsp dry thyme
  - 1/2 tsp Italian seasoning
  - pinch of salt and pepper
- A dutch oven with a lid works perfect for roasting the cauliflower.

DIRECTIONS

Pre heat oven to 400 degrees. Rinse the head of cauliflower and pat dry. Remove tough leaves on the bottom, and chop off a bit of woody stem, but do not chop too far up, as you want the head to stay whole.

In a bowl, mix together the olive oil, garlic, parmesan cheese, parsley, thyme, Italian seasoning and salt and pepper. Turn cauliflower bottom side up in dutch oven and brush with olive oil mixture, then turn it top side up and do the same. Cover dutch oven with lid and bake 35-40 minutes or until tender. Remove lid and sprinkle well with Parmesan cheese and broil 5 minutes or until cauliflower has nice golden brown color.

The Butternut Squash can be cooked in the oven along with the cauliflower. Just toss it with some olive oil, salt and pepper and parsley and place in a small casserole dish. Stir every now and then and remove it before you broil the cauliflower. Place the cauliflower on a serving dish and surround it with the squash. You can cut the cauliflower into wedges to serve it.

Serves 4-5.

MARKETING YOUR ANTIQUE/VINTAGE BUSINESS

Most everyone in this business loves what they do. The reason I know this is that we all work so hard. The “assemblage” of items didn’t just happen. It takes time, lots of gathering, having a vision and knowing your customer.

Gathering of goods is the foundation of your business, but knowing your customer is critical. Identifying new customers for your online, show, booth or store front business can be difficult.

Today's market is unlike anything we have experienced in the past. We have many avenues to sell a variety of new, used, recycled, upcycled, vintage and antique goods.

We gather our goods and hope someone will pay a fair price for them. My experience has been you buy what you love and customers will follow. It will show in your enthusiasm through your displays and in presenting your goods.

Use every tool available. Online is so important right now, but before you know it you will be back to shows, shops and booths. Be cohesive in your advertising. Make one strong statement. Represent yourself and your business as trendy and don't forget that you need to be "dealer friendly" (other dealers can help keep us in business).

TRASH TO TREASURE

By Deborah Cottle

Trash to treasure.. A new approach to taking outdated, worn and forgotten items and breathing new life into them.

As more and more of us are finding ourselves at home right now it has created a perfect opportunity for us to look around the home and see what needs a little updating. With the creation of Annie Sloan chalk paint 30 years ago it has allowed the at home DIYer the ability to create finishes and looks previously only achieved by the professional painter. You can pretty much paint every surface with little to no prep beforehand. Are you tired of that brass chandelier over your dining table? No worries, grab a brush and a tin of paint and it will soon be revamped. How about the guest room dresser from your college days? Yep, it can get a new look for a couple hours of work and a minimal investment. Paint your metal front door, do a wash on your fireplace, and of course the dreaded kitchen cabinets. All refreshed with the use of Annie Sloan chalk paint. I have painted everything from furniture, chandeliers, ceiling fans, brass lamps, floors and cabinets.

Are you wanting a more primitive look to your home projects, might I suggest Miss Mustard Seed's Milk paint. This powder paint has been around for centuries and lends itself to a very authentic farmhouse primitive look. Super fun and easy on all of your raw wood projects as well. You create that worn chippy look of days gone by.

This at home family time is also a great chance to connect with your children. Both paint lines are safe and kid friendly. Grab some samples and paint wood toys, t-shirts and more. Roll the paint on those little hands and make handcrafted cards to send to loved ones. Mother day gifts would be darling with painted details. Encourage creativity, the sky's the limit. The paints are very fast drying and no odors.

During these challenging times I encourage families to come together and get creative. Step out of your comfort zone and create something amazing in your home. Spruce up those outdated projects you have been meaning to get to forever. So many things to paint and so much time now to get those projects done. It is also a great way to save money all while updating what you already have currently.

Cottle and Gunn is located at 708 Osborne Street in St. Marys, Georgia.

Deborah Cottle, owner and her daughter Maddie aka little Cottle can be found in the shop most days creating and painting. “We love the life we have created here in St. Marys and look forward to painting the southeast one brush stroke at a time.”

Cottle and Gunn can be found online at www.cottleandgunn.com as well as Facebook and Instagram. A weekly live tutorial is offered each Thursday night at 9:00 pm on Facebook. Lots of tutorials and inspiration can also be found on Facebook.

During this time Deborah is shipping paint everyday. Please contact her via email at cottleandgunn@gmail.com or call the shop at 912-510-0639 for all of your paint needs.

Garden Statuary

AT HOME WITH LORI POWELL

Gardening is one of Lori Powell's favorite pastimes. When she and husband Dave bought their Lakeland bungalow in 1997, the only thing growing were huge, overgrown azaleas around the house and a beautiful honeysuckle vine. When Lori started planning her flower beds, she knew that garden art would be a part of the plan.

The mosaic birdbath is covered in broken tiles from her favorite restaurant, The Columbia in Ybor City. It holds a blown glass orb by Susan Gott, world renowned glass artist from Tampa and a family friend.

The doves belonged to Lori's mother and sat in her garden in Tampa for 40 years after their move from San Francisco in 1970.

The bottle tree is a whimsical piece that sparkles each morning as the sun is coming up in the east. And finally, even the garden chameleons appreciate having a Madonna in the garden to watch over them!

Savor, the Dining Experience

by Gabriela Celi

FOOD: Some of my personal favorite things to do are cooking, eating and dining. When asking my friend Tonya what she made for Easter dinner she said, stir-fry! An unexpected response, but why not? When I was first married, I did a lot of wok cooking. I really enjoyed my seasoned wok.

Initially, I stayed close to the classic Chinese food categories and traditional procedures. Set your wok on high heat, add peanut oil. When the temperature reaches its cook heat, first in the pan goes the item that will take longer time to cook. The proceed, adding the rest of your ingredients ,i.e. bok choy, snow peas, celery, bell pepper, scallions and a protein. Rice or noodles are the classic side dish. Is there anyone that does not enjoy stir-fry?

The sky is the limit once you've mastered the skill. It's quick, healthy and versatile. Just about anything but the kitchen sink can be incorporated in your dish. More prep time is involved than actual cook time. *Remember soy sauce and chop sticks.

Dining is all about the food, the ambiance and the company. It doesn't have to be a five star restaurant. Find yourself a bottle of sake and savor the dining experience.

Bon appetite, as Julia would say,

BLESSED & DISTRESSED Vintage

*Out of respect...*for the health of our vendors, artists, loyal customers and others who love us and depend on us, we have made the difficult decision to protect our community by closing our doors until it is safe to return.

Please pray for a swift passing of the virus. We remain more Blessed than Distressed. Stay well... We'll be back soon!
